SPECIAL TO THE CHEISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR MEXICO CITY - Putting Mexico financial basis was one of the major tasks of the congressional commission appointed to study the detailed SCORNS 'SPOILS' budgets outlined by the Secretariat of the Treasury for 1928, and to this end the commission has set up several far-reaching reforms.

Mexico's minimum estimated in-

The prohibition has been the subject of much controversy, Many persons contended it caused the French to smuggle their wealth abroad and to leave abroad money received for merchandise exported.

Submit to the League Model Arbitration Pacts

CABLE TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR GENEVA-The American proposal concerning the renunciation of war lends additional interest to the model draft treaties of conciliation and arbitration for the settlement of all disputes which have just been communicated to the League of Nations by Norway and Sweden. They are to be referred to the rapporteurs of the arbitration and security com-mittee, namely Dr. Bénès of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Holsti of Finland and Mr. Rutgers of Holland, who are presently to meet at Prague to consider and report on the material which has been collected for the next meeting of this committee on

The rapporteurs will also consider the proposals made by the Council's committee concerning the prevention of war under Article 11 of the Covenant and it will be their duty to collect all relevant material concerning the measures which should be taken against an aggressor state under Article 16.

under Article 16.

In this connection the security committee will be obliged to take into secount the attitude of the United States toward a pacific blockade and any sterner measures which the Council might employ for the protection of a state against

All these questions have particular interest at the present moment in view of the American proposal, and one of the points which must be con-aidered is the more precise definition of aggression. The problem is how to find a method of applying sanctions, that is to say punitive measures against an aggressor if the American Government is not pre-

Unless America is willing to forgo its right of upholding its nationals in trading with a state which is at war with the League, it is difficult to see how the "big stick" can be used without involving the League in difficulties with the United States. But if some agreement could be reached on this vexed problem then the door might be opened for another naval conference, which this time might result in an agreed limitation of naval armaments.

Far-Reaching Difference Seen by Diplomatic Writer

POSTAL TREMPAPE FROM HALIFAX LONDON-An interesting inter pretation of Aristide Briand's proposal for a Franco-American bilateral treaty denouncing "aggressive wars" is made by the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph who says: "The Briand and Kellogg conceptions are characterized by farreaching differences both in principle and methods. . . It might be easier and more usefull to define what in M. Briand's view would constitute nonaggressive and therefore permissible war from the French

The correspondent continues: "To this a simple answer could no doubt be applied if need be by M. Briand, on the strength of Articles 16 and 15 of the League Covenant... France would consider herself entitled to go to war (apart from repelling a direct attack upon herself) in two other instances:

"1—Where the League Council had unanimously designated one of two parties to a conflict as the aggressor and recommended that sanctions be applied against the state designated

"2. Where the Council having failed to reach a unanimous agreement on the merits of the conflict, France by virtue of Paragraph 7, Article 15 of the Covenant elects to exercise the right reserved there-under to member states individually 'to take such action as they shall consider necessary for the maintenance of justice.' In other words, given this set of circumstances, tary aid to any state involved in a conflict with which she had concluded special pacts or alliances.

"Now seeing that France is a permanent member of the League Council and would adjudicate on any conflict in which she had not as yet participated, she would have it in her power to settle the question of their ways not agreed to the conflict of the conflict in which she would have it in her power to settle the question of their ways not agreed to the conflict of the confli what was not a war of aggression but a permissible war according to if she agreed with all the other Council members on the designation of aggressor, she would be urged to declare war on that aggres-sor; and if she disagreed with sev-eral or even all of the remaining Council members she would be free to take sides in the conflict as she chose. America, however, is not a member of the League. Nor could she be expected to consent to be bound by the individual opinion of France as to what was and what was not a 'war of aggression.'

"On this capital issue America, like France, and every other sovereign state would claim the right to exercise her own judgment. Moreover, America, like Great Britain, has an innate tendency to distrust military alliances and the automatic intervention of third parties in conflicts which might otherwise be localized."

sales at the various Australian capitals, according to reports extending from July to November, have been on a satisfactory level as compared with last year, and at the moment of writing this the tendency of the market continues to be satisfactory to growers. This state is the principal wool state of the Commonwealth, and it has shipped so far this season £3,500,000 worth as compared with £8,490,000 worth during the corresponding period of last year.

The biggest buyers of the season in the order of their buying are, to date, France, Germany, England, Japan. They all purchased between £1,500,000 and £2,000,000 worth, France's total being £1,846,000, and Japan's £1,554,000. America's buying is light. The total Australian wool sales, so far as they have progressed to date, represent a value of £16,105,000 for 675,676 bales.

PRESIDENT FIRM AGAINST LARGER SHIPPING FLEET

Takes Issue-With Terms of Bill Backed by Mr. Jones to Extend Activities

SPECIAL PROM MONITOR BUREAU WASHINGTON - The President opposes any extension of Government fleet ownership, urges relinquishment of the Merchant Marine to private operation as rapidly as possible, and takes issue with any measure that would make it more difficult to achieve this end.

This is the quick response of the White House to the bill reported out by the Senate Commerce Committee sponsored by Wesley L. Jones, (R.), Senator from Washington, chairman, intended to promote the expansion of federal owned shipping, and which is considered a challenge to the Presi-dent's well-known attitude.

The widely-contrasted views have suddenly thrown the limelight full on the debated subject of American shipping policy with the prospect that a new and more definite course will be struck out in one direction or other as a result.

Definite Policy Advocated The Jones measure declared that a direct subsidy could not ap-parently be obtained from Congress and that the only alternative was a Government-owned fleet. Its proponent declares that "unless definite and constructive policy is adopted at this session nothing can be done for at least two years." Mr. Coolidge, on the other hand, has taken the occasion to point out the seeming reluctance of the Shipping Board to dispose of government vessels to private bidders.

The point on which Mr. Coolidge takes most pointed issue with the Jones bill is on the clause requiring that federal-owned ships shall not be sold to private buyers without unanimous consent of the seven Shipping France would insist on giving mili-Board members. It is pointed out tary aid to any state involved in a for Mr. Coolidge that already one conflict with which she had conmember of this board has voted against every proposal to relinquish the ships, as made, and has a perfect record of opposition.

Indirect Assistance Favored Mr. Coolidge does not hide his irritation with this policy which found an echo in his message to Congress
He sees no reason why uanimous consent should be required, as though the board were a jury deliberating on the conviction for a crime, and substantially making one member a majority in the board.

As though in reply to the Jones statement that a susbaidy is essential to operation of a private merchant fleet, Mr. Coolidge is represented as considering granting further indirect assistance to Amreican vessels. Mr. Coolidge makes it understood that he recognizes the importance of a strong trade fleet. To support it he propose an increase in the mail service carried on American bottoms and, secondly, a proposal that officers and crew might receive federal compensation in view of their auxiliary status in time of war.

The most striking feature of the world shipping situation as the President sees it is the large supply of warship wolld his for compensation. of vessels available for commerce A new American vessel would no bring 25 per cent of its cost the day after launching, according to the

BRITISH SCHOOL TEACHERS' PAY DISPUTE FIXED

Burnham Arbitral Award Brings Carmarthenshire Into Line With Rest

LONDON — Lord Bursham has made an arbitral award in connection with the long-standing salary dispute between the Carmarthenshire Education Authority and its teachers which brings about peace between the parties concerned. But it does far more than that—it brings about peace throughout the whole of England and Wales, so far as teachers' pay is concerned.

Carmarthenshire was the one outstanding authority not to acknowledge the Burnham Committee as the national body responsible for the determination of salary scales. As the result of its conversion it can now be said that every teacher in the public elementary and secondary schools of the country will be receiving salary according to the na-tional agreement made by the Burn-ham Committee, that is the standing joint committee representative local authorities and teachers.

To arrive at this complete settlecompetition between teachers on the same form of service conducted, one hand and local authorities on the would now find ourselves in the unone hand and local authorities on the other had resulted in confusion and happy position of not knowing which book was being used.

A series of strikes coupled with a growing shortage of teachers induced Mr. Fisher to call into being the Burnchairman) with a view to arriving at a "progressive and orderly" solution of this vexed problem. The result was the formulation of four scales applicable to various types of areas (rural, industrial, mixed and Lon-

But many authorities were reluctant to abandon their autonomy in this matter, and during the eight years that have elapsed since the setting up of the committee the Na-tional Union of Teachers has had several disputes with these authorities. The dispute in Lowestoft lasted nearly a year, during which the regular teachers were on strike and their places were taken by temporary teachers. The Carmarthenshire dispute threatened to culminate in a strike in August last, but common

"The cause which induced the Commons to reject the alternative book was the question of the reservation of the sacrament. The debate in the House of Commons satisfied the members that this was nothing more nor less than the doctrine of transubstantiation, and this was one of the vital points which caused the secession from the Church of Rome at the time of the Reformation.

> "The upholders of the measure have stated, both in the House and outside, that the rejection of the book would be an incentive for disestablishment of the church. On the other hand, it is felt that the rejection of the measure will have the opposite effect. As has been proved by the vote, the great mass of the laity in this country is Protestant, and stands firm for all that they fought for at the Reformation. The great mass of Protestants who are not members of the established church have been quite willing to uphold it

"Disestablishment would inevitably carry with it disendowment. Is it possible that this Nation could ever become a nation of robbers?
The funds of the state church have been derived in a majority of cases from people who for hundreds of years have left their life savings for the promotion of a faith which they were satisfied would bring the greatest consolation to the mass of the people in this country. If disestablishment comes would it not be sacrilege to take away the money, that has been left by the Protestants

HEN Dr. Wallace W. Atwood was called from Harvard University in 1920 to succeed Dr. G. The graduate school of geography now constitutes one of the strong departments of the university and is one of the few fully equipmed

President Atwood introduced two other features: (1) the summer session of six weeks, specially designed for teachers of geography, history, and related subjects; and (2) the home study courses in geography, designed to be of interest to teachers and students of geography in its various phases. President Atwood appointed as directer of the home study department, Douglas C. Ridgley, professor of geography in education, in the graduate school of geography. This department issued its first announcement in 1923, with a few courses in geography. The offerings have been increased until 18 courses of college grade are now available. Five of these courses deal specifically with problems of the teaching of geography; 13 courses are of academic college grade.

More than 500 students have profited by these home study courses. They have met the needs of teachers in the plementary school, junior high school, senior high school, normal school, and college. These courses have enabled college students to make progress in their college courses during vacation periods. The courses in weather and climate have been supervised personally by Dr. Charles F. Brooks, professor of meteorology and climatology at Clark University, and have been sought by United States Weather Bureau workers and forecasters. Some courses have been taken by those who have

A number of geography teachers have made their first contacts with Clark University through the home study courses and have continued their work by means of residence courses in the summer school and in the regular academic year. Ex-perienced teachers now hold the college degrees of bachelor of educa-tion, master of arts, and doctor of philosophy from Clark University be-cause of renewed interest in educational progress engendered by contacts established through home study courses bearing directly on their classroom problems. Some enthusiastic students have taken as many as five home study courses in rapid succession, and continued their studies in residence for advanced

Some years ago there were no the various phases of geography, in-cluding: Physical geography of the lands, weather and climate, economic, geography, mathematical geography, regional studies of the various continents: North America, South America, Europe eastern continents. From our high window, through the lens of art. She showed us that tall smoke is blue and pearl And rises from a roof with plumelike curl. She showed fine colors in a city's heart:

Deep violet shadows, wonderful to see, And orange windows flaming in the sun, And hidden color values, one by one; She wrought the magic of art's alchemy

Till most of us could paint with freer grace, While those of us who could not paint a stroke Were glad for that perception she awoke Which finds much beauty in the commonplace.

If one may be forgiven the meta-phorical ambiguity, this gap is at the moment in the British meltingpot. A government committee, known as the Malcolm Committee, has rec-ommended that notice shall be given immediately to raise the present school-leaving age by one year—that is, to 15—at the end of five years from now. A small group of educators, who form the School Research Association of South Pasadena, Calif., is evolving a plan whereby supervisors and other educators may have their material published and marketed in a co-operative manner, yet without nitial expense to the author. The plan is to get out material which has been refused by publishers, and give it a chance to show its good qualities and be of help. There are oo many good things hidden under bushels. The material so far published is largely in the line of visual aids. The Arleigh fraction booklets and the Fixit reader sheets have been on the market about eight years. Although a half million copies have been sold, no publisher has yet been nduced to take over either.

The latest method of educational presentation is the film-slide, and the School Research Association is arranging a film-slide library. The first production is a set of wall maps for geography and history, for daylight projection. When thrown on the wall each is about 4 feet by 6 feet in size, yet the entire set of 125 maps is packed in a metal box to slip into your pocket. The projector weighs only seven pounds and attaches to any electric light socket. The cuts size of the film, which is standard width. Sets on several subjects are in preparation.

Would You Be a Landscape Architect?

PERHAPS the reader has just graduated from college or possibly she is going to do so in 1928, and the selection of a vocation is at hand. She has heard that landscape architecture is a delightful and remunerative field for women, so with her "artistic bent" well in focus, and confident that her love for harmonious effect in line and color, combined with her deep appreciation of hature, is sufficient index, she wishes to consider this field as her life work. Thus a brief outline of the training, natural qualifications, equipment and apprenticeship called for in this vocation may be of interest here.

Landscape architecture serves two important needs intimately associated with every-day life—those of utility and of beauty. It is just as vital that a gravel walk or a concrete wall be properly conceived and executed as it is to have the flower beds that line the former or serve as banking for the latter planted in a way that will show good taste in arrangement and produce harmony of color and line. Whenever any beautiful effect appeals to an observer she has a desire to know how that effect is produced. So in the matter of beautiful homes and gardens, the landscape architect knows the methods and technic.

Landscape architecture must be numbered among the businesses called seasonal for at times it rushes at top speed and again it experiences periods of extreme slackness; but in spite of these seasonal drawbacks the field is one of steady—if slow—development, for the expansion is rooted in an increasing appreciation by the public of art and nature, sentiment and when this work, which she took up of art and nature, sentiment and delight. The profession is one which caters for the most part to the wealthy, but there is reason to suppose that should the beginner, particularly in her own business, search for the client of moderate means, and for moderate charges give good work, a new and success ful note might be struck.

The Organization

The Call of London

By J. T. GREIN

London
BEFORE the middle of January a committee of delegates from European countries is meeting to discuss the possibilities and practicability of a great scheme—an international dramatic tournament in London during the summer of 1928. It appears that certain European theatrical managers are anxious that London should follow in the wake of Paris, and improve on the methods adopted there a few months ago when Miss Sybii Thorndike and Mr. Casson achieved an artistic success with "Saint Joan," and lost money during their week's stay, and another well-known artist, who and another well-known artist, who surely there must be one or two was quite ready to fly across with ready to subscribe for the slender her company, was invited to send an guaranty required to render London "on account" of rent for the one for a week as world-famed as during on account of rent for the one for a week as world-tamed as during might's performance, and was so displeased with this proposal—a trifle of 600 francs, or £5—that the whole plan was canceled at the last mopple of the motor show. Meanwhile, let us pleased with this proposal—a trifle of 600 francs, or £5—that the whole plan was canceled at the last mopple of the motor show. Meanwhile, let us pleased with this proposal—a trifle of 600 francs, or £5—that the whole plan was canceled at the last mopple of the motor show. Meanwhile, let us hope that next week's words will lead to next year's deed. For sooth a splendid cause! "The Royal Family"

June, 1928—wiser counsels will prevail in Paris and the whole idea be properly systematized, I do not know, but I feel sure that the sponsors of the London tournament will see to it that a proper basis is established and that the viciting companies will not that a proper basis is established and that the visiting companies will not be called upon to pay rent at all, and their whole risk limited to the journey and the housing of their company, whereas they will be given a liberal proportion of the receipts, if possible a guarantee. As I write negotiations are in full swing, and I understand that a fine theater in the J wyn Theater a new comedy, "The Kaufman and Edna Ferber. Mr. Haines has it in him to be a likable nulsance, as witness his fine performance in "Brown of Harvard" and "Slide, Kelly, Slide." Here he clowned away his chances and won tances, so that a good time was had by all, both going and coming. Not much can be said for his adventures at West Point, for military discipline would have ironed out this yapping yokel within his first fortnight.

GRANT MITCHELL THE LAUGH BENEATION "THE BABY CYCLONE" New Guitry Comedy

SPECIAL FROM MONITOR BUREAU Paris THAT most fruitful of modern French playwrights, Sacha Guitry, has placed a new comedy at the Théâtre des Variétés, which not only amuses the audiences, but also answers a question often asked: "Can a Guitry play succeed without the author's appearance in it?" The play is galled "Un Miracle." Guitry has already another play running at the Théâtre Edouard VII, known as "Jean de la Fontaine." As temps, are acting in this, they were obliged to find substitutes for the parts which would have been taken by them in "Un Miracle." Especially good was Pierre Fresnay's playing of the debonair young hero of the tale, Robert Josselin. Janine Ron-ceray, as the "jeune fille de prov-ince"—the fresh, country type—displayed sincerity and refinement in her acting.

Guitry's comedies rarely require any great mental effort to understand them. The feature about his writing which makes it wear, despite a possible lack of substance in plot, its vitality. His plays sparkle and dance like a brook. "Un Miracle" is of this order. Robert Josselin has run through his fortune and does not wish to work. An inventor offers him an apparently absurd plan for transforming automobile gases into disinfectants for the streets. Robert accepts the scheme, on the not particularly honorable basis of cuspecting it to be a fraud, but with the hope he can sell the project to some gullible person.

The gullible person appears, but happens to be father of the girl with whom Robert falls in love. So, to win her, he goes away and actually works so hard on the inven-tor's plan that he can realize much money out of it. Hence, the situa-tion is saved and everyone lives WARSAW, Poland - Three new "happily ever afterwards." In drawment both as regards acting and setting. The Silver Birch

My lady Silver Birch,-Beautiful, when in April You shake out tremulous frills of tenderest green; Lovely in summer o'er the scented garden, When west winds make your rippling leaves a harp To sing of sighing seas; Or golden-garbed in autumn, Robed in the splendor that befits kings' daughters,
The light reflecting;
But now in winter with a dove's-wing sky, Gray-blue and pallid. Gray-blue and pallid,
Most beautiful you seem.
Your individuality expressed,
Each line of lacy loveliness etched on the cool background,
Daintiness, grace, lithe strength,
Delicacy, tenderness, tranquillity—
My Lady Silver Birch!
Till the faming sun folds orange scarves among your branches,
And, in the delicate pale green of the windy sunset,
The first star sets his jewel in your hair.

ing a baffle, but this restriction uses not mean that the cabinet containing the speaker be not less than 20 inches wide. This is because the sides of the cabinet as well as the front have a certain baffling effect.

The material of the baffle is not critical, but should not be too thin.

Wood is the should not be too thin.

Many loudspeakers have been featured during the last few years, the majority being cones working on the electro-magnetic idea, carried to a very high point of development in the W. E. cone. This year has seen the introduction of a type of speaker for popular use which considerably exceeds the W. E. cone on the lower registers, and that is the electro-dynamic cone. We have never heard any reproduction of low tones that compare with our tests on these units. The following discussion by one of the Magnavox engineers is interesting, primarily because this company has specialized in electrodynamic speaker design for many years. His basic idea, combined with a cone air actuating device, is now a leading factor in set design which incorporates higher-priced apparatus.

ecause few striking novelties in design have presented themselves The horn type of speaker was standard construction a few years ago, until it gave way to the cone-speaker, which promised to displace the horn entirely. But before any such displacement took place, the horn type speaker took on a new lease of life by virtue of the use of a long air column of proper design. Thus at column of proper design. Thus at present the two types are equally important, and it therefore appears that perfection is to be realized only by the refinement of the driving unit, whether the actual sound source be a cons or an air column.

It was this realization that prompted the engineers of the Magnavox Company, at Oakland, Calif., to develop a driving unit of unique design, and of a type that would be free from two of the greatest evils of existing types, namely, the stiffness of the vibrating element, and the small distance through which this element was permitted to move.

Stiffness, especially in a cone speaker, causes distortion in two ways. First, it tends to give the speaker a natural period or resonance, which has the effect of causing certain notes in musical reproduc-certain notes in musical reproduc tion to be over-accentuated. Second, it prevents the reproduction of extremely low tones, because the energy of these low tones is not as great as some of the higher frequencies, and any resistance to the motion of the vibrating element tends to suppress the low tones more than the high. Limiting the distance through which the vibrating element can move means limiting the sound energy available from the speaker, and this limitation is most noticeable and this limitation is most noticeable in the low frequencies, since the cone or diaphragm must move through a greater distance when reproducing low frequencies than when reproducing high frequencies of the same of direct current power are required for this purpose. As a matter of fact, however, this problem has been solved by offering to the user of the speaker a choice of field coll windings. There are two standard windings. There are two standard windings available, one for use with battery-operated sets, and consuming six-tenths of an ampere at six volts, and another designed for operation at 100 volts, and consuming only 40 milliamperes. The six-volt type is designated as the R-4 unit, and the 100 volt as the R-5 unit.

The application of the R-5 unit to The application of the R-5 unit to A. C. operated receiving sets demonstrates its flexibility of adaptation. Since the inductance is very high (from 20 to 30 henrys) it makes an excellent choke-coil in the filter system of a power pack. In case it becomes desirable to use the R-5 unit with a power pack already equipped with choke-coils, the field winding can be substituted for a portion of the resistance in the voltage divided circuit. For the information divided circuit. For the information of those desiring to make this application, the resistance of the field winding is 2500 ohms.

Still another means of exciting the R-5 field coil is to connect it directly to a 110-volt, direct current power

Still another means of exciting the R-5 field coll is to connect it directly to a 110-volt, direct current power source, in case the user is in a metropolitan district where the power service is direct current. Although a slight ripple, as from the direct current supply, or the residual ripple in a filter choke is not at all objectionable, the R-5 unit cannot be excited by alternating current.

So far nothing has been mentioned concerning the installation of the speaker unit. If the speaker is purchased in a cahinet as furnished by the Magnavox Company (either the Beverly, Aristocrat, or Loboy model), the unit is provided with proper baffle and its mounting need be given no further consideration. But if it is desired to purchase either the R-6 or R-5 unit as such, and mount it in a console or other cabinet which may be at hand, certain precautions must be taken if the best performance is to be realized.

Because the Magnavox Dynamic Speaker uses for a sound-emitter a small cone acting as a plunger or piston, the back of the cone radiates sound waves just as the front does, but out of phase with the waves emitted by the front surface. If the speaker unit is permitted to operate in the open, the waves issuing from the front of the cone will almost completely interfere with those issuing from the tack, and the result will be very low volume and complete absence of any low tops.

Now if the speaker he placed in a service of the sale of steamship tickets has been opened at 25 West Forty-third Street, New York, providing an uptown effice where reservations may be made.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (P)—A prom-ing rally in the stock market today flowing the amouncement of an un-spectedly large increase of half a lillon tons in unfilled orders of the S. Steel Corporation, was nipped by flood of seiling orders shortly after idday.

million tons in unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation, was nipped by a flood of selling orders shortly after midday.

U. S. Steel, which had led the recovery with an advance of nearly 2 points to 150%, suddenly plunged to 146%, as large amounts of the stock were offered.

The sudden slump in steel common dismayed operators for the advance working with other prominent stocks, and a hasty unloading was soon in progress in many quarters of the list. General Motors toppled from a day's high of 134 to 180%, and Radio Corporation which had reached 104% retreated to 99.

The growing discussion of the brokers' loans situation had made it difficult for pools to attract a following, and the general market was inclined to sag during the morning despite some intermittent rallies.

A few specialties such as Borden, Christie Brown, Jones Brothers' Teamade the most progress, with the movement in the ralls featured by a rise in Texas & Pacific in anticipation of an early inauguration of dividends.

When prices began to sag, however, losses of 2 points or so were quite numerous among the industrials.

Some high-priced issues had exceptional declines, Midland Steel Products preferred falling 10 and Rossia Insurance 7, International Harvester 6% and Laclede Gas, Case Threshing Machine and Brooklyn Edison 5 to 5%. Montgomery Ward, Nash Motors, 3nternational Match preferred, Purity Baking B and A. M. Byers also were conspicuously heavy.

Call money ruling at 4%, with the possibility of a further stiffening later in the day, was cited as an influence in the broad selling movement after noon. Trading was in heavy volume, running close to 2,000,000 shares in the first three hours.

The closing was weak. Investment railroads began to droop in the late dealings as holders began to throw them over to protect speculative commitments in other issues. Canadian Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohlo yielded more than 4 points, and Delaware & Hudson, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, and Lehigh Valley fell 2 to 3. Greene Cananea Copper, which last low as 124. Total sales approximated 3,300,000 shares.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with sterling cables around $4.87½.
Trading in the bond market today again assumed a generally desultory appearance with prices showing only fractional changes.
The undertone was firm, with easy money conditions as the chief factor. New offerings, after a brief spurt on Monday, once more eased off to a trickle.

ch railway liens as have been ad-

Such railway liens as have been advancing gradually since the beginning of the year, showed a tendency to ease off. Erie 5s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s and Chesapeake Corporation 5s were fractionally lower. "Frisco" issues developed some activity at firm prices following reports of a large refinancing program.

UNFILLED ORDERS OF U. S. STEEL ARE SURPRISINGLY LARGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (49)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on Dec. 31, made public today, showed an unexpectedly large increase of $18,420 tons over the preceding month, reaching 3,972,874 tons.
The tonners was the largest for any ceding month, reaching 3,972,874 tons. The tonnage was the largest for any month since March, 1926, and the first time since December, 1925, that an increase of 500,000 tons has been shown.

The industry had anticipated a large gain in unfilled tonnage, estimates running from 300,000 to 400,000 tons, but that it exceeded 500,000 tons was not expected by anyone.

Adjustment of contracts toward the close of the year and a rush of incoming orders for rails, automobile steel and other equipment in the last few days of December, contributed to the increase:

The figures compared with 3,454,444 tons on Nov. 30; 3,841,040 tons on Oct. 31; 3,148,113 tons on Sept. 30, and 3,960,969 tons on Dec. 31, 1926.

NASH MOTORS PAYS

Nash Motors Company declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1, payable Féb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 20. This is the same as was paid in the previous quarten.

Nash for the year ended Nov. 30, 1927, showed ast of $22,670,744 after expenses, depreciation and federal taxes, equivalent to $3.30 a share on 2,730,000 no-par shares stock.

This compared with $23,346,306, or $3.50 a share, on the common after allowing for preferred dividends in the preceding year.

need for goods is as yet unsatisfied in the main.

It is now being realized that the volume of trading put through in December was larger than was generally known at the time.

Despite that fact, a broadening in the market had been confidently expected just after the first of the year, since buyers were gaining confidence in the stability of prices and were impressed by the gradual advance of gray goods quotations. Since the downturn in raw cotton it is believed that buying will be limited until the latter part of the month, when the activity in finished goods can be used as a gauge of what is to come in gray goods channels.

Colored Yarn Goods

Colored Yarn Goods

Celered Yarn Goods

The last week has seen a broadening in the movement of some of the colored yarn goods. The cheaper grades of ginghams have been bought in larger volume than for some time. Denim manufacturers report an active response from overall manufacturers following the naming of the new denim prices, which are based on 2.20s a cent a yard cheaper than the former level. Chambrays and other work shirt materials have also been moving well, but there has been hesitation in the flannel market, which has been 1 cent above the previous season.

Season.

Sheetings quotations fell off an eighth of a cent with bids down a quarter of a cent. Sales of 37-inch 4-yard goods took place at 8%c and 31-inch 5-yard went at 6%c. Fair quantities of 40-inch 4.25-yard goods were taken at 8c and 6.15-yard 40 squares again sold at 5%c. For 35-inch 5-yard goods there were sales at 6%c while 40-inch 2.85-yard was traded in at 11%c to 11%c.

Print Cloth Markets

Print Cloth Markets

Print cloth markets weakened only slightly. There was not much activity. Sales of 38%-inch 64x60s were made at 8%c in first hands though second-hands were trading at 3c flat to 8%c: 65x72s dropped off to 9%c with second hand sales at 9c flat. A few 38%-inch 60x45s went at 6%c though mills generally were firm in quoting 6%c. On 30 squares there were sales put through at 10%c though most mills asked 11c flat.

In the fine goods section of the mar-asked 11c flat.

In the fine goods section of the market there was more activity in evidence, and the weakness in raw cotton had a lighter effect though prices became somewhat irregular. Some very substantial inquiry was received.

Production During 1927 Has Often Passed Pre-War Marks While Industry Reorganizes and Prosperity Is Nation-Wide

This is the seventh installment in a series on business conditions and outlook in 21 countries written for The Cheistian Science Moniton. Russis and Poland will be discussed next.

By HOWARD SIEPEN

Berlin ERMAN industry has just passed through its most prosperous year since the war, production often surpassing that of pre-war times. By this the entire Nation has profited. At the close of 1927, Germany is still exceedingly active, but already there are signs of a change, since the home market, for which industry has mainly been working this year, is reaching a degree of saturation. Realizing this, the German industrialists once more are looking toward foreign markets for relief, and the danger exists they will fall back into their old habit of neglecting the home market. This time Germany will re-enter the world's market well as compared with 9,950,000,000 last

Aided by British Strike The striking improvement of industry this year is due to many rea-sons, the most important, without doubt, being the formation of capthat the present improvement of Ger man industry is based on borrowed money. This undoubtedly is true, but The impulse, however, was it could scarcely be expected, it is given by the British miners' strike averred here, that a country of the last summer, which furnished the coal high industrial development of Germany could accumulate sufficient at a time when they were practically paralyzed, due to lack of capital. This set the ball rolling. The great question asked at the beginning of this year was whether industry could maintain its increased production after the end of the Britsh strike. Fortunately for Germany, this was the case. The amount of capital acquired at that time by no means was sufficient, but it enabled industry to place orders and to start rebuilding its house. The influx of foreign capital was the second great cause of this year's boom

HEEP IS STAR OF

NEW YORK — Dartmouth College, 1927 champion of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League, made its initial local appearance last night by defeating its predecessor in the title. Columbia University, in the first league game of the Morningside institution. Defeat is no stranger to the Columbia five, as it has not won a single game so far this year. The score was 27 to 22.

Dartmouth had the edge all the way, except early in the game when Columbia went into a tie at 2-to-2. Dartmouth used the same team all the way through, with Capt. W. G. Heep Jr. '28, left guard, the outstanding star. He scored 11 points in the first half, then devoted his attention to feeding his associates for the balance of the session. Langdell was next best, while the final score, a perfectly executed dribble down the side and a clean-cut shot, was made by Swarthout. The summary:

it promptly took advantage of the opening. Conroy rushed and shot, the puck hit Borland, and Wilson picked it up and drove it past Timmins for the tying goal. In less than two min-utes the visitors assumed the load. Ingram took a pass which was off-side, skated to the defense and drove high. The puck hit Timmins' pads and bounded into the net.

During the latter part of the middle session the Maroons drove shot upon shot at McCusker without success.

Efforts are likely to be made by the board of governors of the Canadian-American Hockey League to revise the present ruling or interpret differently, so that Leland K. SPECIAL TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR STRATFORD, Ont,—The Stratford Nationals handed the Kitchener Millionaires, leaders in the Canadian Professional Hockey League standing, the worst defeat they have sustained this season here Monday night, when the locals won by 5 to 0, scoring one goal in each of the first and second periods, and adding three in the third. It was the Nationals' second straight win after a long losing streak. KITCHENER DOWNED & TO 0

HAMILTON PLAYS BETTER PECIAL TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITO HAMILTON. Ont.—The Hamilton Tigers were stronger in every department of the game Monday night than were the visiting Niagara Falls Cataracts, and as a result the locals won their Canadian Professional Hockey League game by 4 to 1, securing all their goals before the losers beat Taugher, Brydson scored twice for the winners. The victory kept the locals in third place.

JESSE C. BURKETT'S SON SOLD
WORCESTER (P)—Howard Burkett, son of Jesse C. Burkett, former big league ball player, will play with the Los Angeles baseball team of the Pacific Coast League, it became known here.
Burkett, whose timely hitting and infield play helped the Albany club to win the Eastern League pennant last year, has been sold outright by the Lawmakers to the west coast club. The announcement came as a surprise, as it was generally understood that the Boston Braves had been after him. Burkett, who began his professional baseball career six years ago, when he went to San Antonio with the New York Glants, has since played with many teams in the East and South,

Defeats lowa in Basketball, While Wisconsin Five

MADISON, Wis.—University of Wisconsin won its second Intercollegiate Conference basketball game of the season here Monday night, defeating University of Michigan, 26 to 22.

Led by a new scoring star in the person of H. E. Foster '30, the Badgers passed the ball with speed that bewildered their larger opponents and enabled them to retain its possession throughout much of the contest. Michigan led for a few minutes at the beginning of the game, scoring six points while Wisconsin was making two, but the Cardinal was never headed again during the encounter.

The score at the half was 12 to 7 in Wisconsin's favor, and at one time in the second half the Badgers led by 10 points, 24 to 14. Within the last 10 minutes of play Michigan rallied under the lead of F. A. Harrigan '28, and reduced the Cardinal margin to three points, 24 to 21.

Foster, playing his first year at center for Wisconsin's accord 12 of his points, 24 to 21.

Foster, playing his first year at center for Wisconsin, scored 12 of his team's points, while L. R. Behr '28, captain and usually high scorer of the squad, was so closely guarded that he was unable to tally. Harrigan was high point man for Michigan with four field goals. The summary:

BLACK HAWKS HERE FOR HOCKEY GAME

The Chicago Black Hawks, with new men in the lineup, play the Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League will represent the younger generation.

Patterson and Hawkes form a strong combination, while Hawkes is regarded by many experts as the best singles player in Australia.

Bruins in a National Hockey League game at the New Boston Arena tonight. Since their 1-to-1 tie here, opening the season, and following that, a victory over the Montreal Maroons in Montreal, the Black Hawks Detroit center, is now with the Black Hawks and Ty Arbour, former Pitts-burgh forward, is also with the Chi-cago team. Edward Rodden and Gorcago team. Edward Rodden and Gordon Fraser, forwards for the Black Hawks on their last invasion here, are now with Toronto and Detroit, respectively.

The club has been handicapped all season with Cecil H. Dye out of the lineup and recently the loss of J. D. Irwin has taken away the Hawks' real scoring power. Another player who will appear with the visitors toright will be Leo LaFrance, former Duluth forward, who has been loaned to Chicago by Canadiens. The entire Bruin lineup is ready for the game Bruin lineup is ready for the game and the locals hope to secure a vic-tory and thereby tie Detroit for the lead of the standing.

11 Pieces NOTES

Alexander Alexandrovitch von Aljectin, native of Russia and a naturalised citizen of France was born in Moscow on Oct. 19, 1892 and is four years younger than Jose R. Capablanca from whom he recently wrested the title of "Chess Champion of the World." His parents being wealthy and of the noble class he was early sent to a military academy and later to the Imperial Law School of St. Petersburg, where he took up chess, winning his masterwhip of the game at the age of 16.

At the start of the World War he made his escape from Mannheim, Ger, where he had been interned, and as an officer of infantry saw service on the Austrian front, and, being wounded, spent some time as an inmate of the monastic hospital at Tarnopol. It was here he contested the following and when similar ferries are put on the somewhat famous short but brilliant bilindfold game.

THESE QUESTIONS WERE ANSWERED IN YESTERDAY'S MONITOR

What They Say

OWEN D. YOUNG: "We can afford to set the example of being big, generous, and polite. Rights will not be sacrificed by that attitude. They will be preserved. In a great nation, bitterness and selfishness, alone, are the enemies of right."

WILLIAM O. MURRAY: "Music should be the vehicle for intro-spective thought and meditation, and should appeal most strongly to the spiritual and intellectual in mankind. To this splendid ideal jazz is a stranger."

JAMES J. DAVIS: "If population alone made a country prosper-ous. China, economically and financially, would lead the

DEAN INGE: "Christianity is not

Democracy's Forward March

N MARCH Poland will choose a new Diet. Last October Norway chose a new Storting. Within a comparatively short time most of the Balkan states have held elections, and it was not so very long ago since elections were held in Austria, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Belgium. In Great Britain, France and Germany elections will be held in the comparatively near future.

This phenomenon of all the men in Europe going to the polls is a comparatively new thing. In France the regular recurrence of general elections was not assured until a little over a half century ago, In Germany, Austria, Bel-gium, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania and other places complete and equal manhood suf-frage was one of the main objects for which the popular parties were fighting during the first decade of the present century, and in some cases clear up until the end of the World War. Voting is a new experience for millions of European peasants. But at last it is acknowledged in most European countries that all the men have a right to the ballot. This, of course, does not mean that all the men of Europe really can vote as they want to. In Spain the Parliament is appointed. In Russia there is no Parliament. In Italy voting has been reduced to the possibility of approving deputies selected by a little group of owerful men. In Rumania the party in power strictly controls elections. In Bulgaria and Jugoslavia there is much local coercion. In Turkey there is but one party. In Hungary the ballot is not secret except in a few urban con-

And even when voting is entirely free, there is much maneuvering by influential commit-tees so that the mass of the people cannot always vote as they would like to. Moreover election laws are frequently framed in such a way as practically to disfranchise whole sections of the population of certain countries.

Furthermore it would be preposterous to suppose that every shepherd, peasant, gardener, teacher, storekeeper or artisan knows how to vote on complicated questions of economics, foreign affairs, and administration. There is nothing supernatural in the ballot, nor has the power to vote brought any sudden, fundamental transformation in any country. There was no phenomenal difference in Rumania before and after the introduction of universal suffrage; between the Belgium of today, when every man votes, and the Belgium of yesterday with a limited, graduated suffrage.

Nevertheless there is a difference. It is not a magical transformation, but it is an improvement. The franchise represents a decided gain. It is a road to better things. And it is a road that will not be closed. It may be partially choked, as in some Balkan states, for a time, and temporarily blocked, as in Italy and Russia and Spain, but the elections, so frequently held in Europe, are some of the unmistakable signs that the people will continue to try to govern themselves. Democracy is advancing. In spite of disappointment and apprehension in certain circles, there probably were never so many people who supported democratic methods in government as at present.

Winging Mail O'er Land and Sea

FRANCE is determined to speed up its communications with South American the next few weeks, provided there is no hitch in the plans, a regular 10-day mail service will be established with the Argentine. The service will not be carried on exclusively by airplane, the midocean stage being covered by boat until France is convinced of the reliability of the heavier-than-air machine for this part of the journey. Later, when an all-air service put into operation, a further saving of two days will be effected.

The French project is not so ambitious as that of its neighbor across the Pyrenees. Spain has under construction, in Germany, a dirigible capable of crossing from Europe to Latin America in three and one-half to four days, and affording all the luxuries of a modern hotel. This airship will have a dining room that can be converted into a ballroom, and a special radio service for bringing music from the air. The figures vary as to cabin capacity, but the airship is said to have accommodation for forty Nor is Italy to be outdone. There has been much discussion of an Italian transatlantic service to Buenos Aires.

Altogether a notable degree of ærial activity is in evidence in the countries on the shores of the Mediterranean. What accounts for it? Spain is closely related to South America in language and customs. Italy needs an outlet for ts surplus population. Commercial advantages interest France. But above all, perhaps, there is he desire to be first in the field, and that desire, it would seem, is soon to be fulfilled by France in the winging of packages of mail across land

Athletic Prospects for 1928

ESULTS were produced at the meetings of The college and amateur athletic associa-York City which are sure to prove beneficial to smateur sports in the United States during the current year. While college football undoubtedly attracted much of the attention and, to many, seemed to be the most important ques-tion discussed, to those interested in amateur athletics in general, the settlement of the diftween, on the one hand, the National Amateur Athletic Federation and the National Collegiate Athletic Association and, on the other, the American Olympic Association, was dly the most important accomplish-ent of the meetings.

That any differences should ever have arisen stween these three great sporting bodies was to be regretted, as such a happening could not help having a detrimental effect on athletics of all forms, to say nothing of endangering the representation, by its best amateur athletes, of United States in the coming Olympic ended by disarmament or pacifism alone. Experience has shown that this method has never yet put an end to war, and reason supplies the explanation. As William Penn, one of the great peace lovers of history, clearly saw, it is government, not disarmament, which is the condition of peace, and then only if its acts are based on justice. The main cause of war, as has been pointed out in these articles, is that there is no government, no constitution, no law in the real sense of that word, in the international sphere. Internationally speaking, the nations are still living in a condition of anarchy. Until they arrive at the point when men and nations can be united under a single constitution, armaments of some kind will be necessary for self-defense and to promote peace and to subserve justice.

The reason is not difficult to understand. So long as nations remain entirely sovereign and independent and there is no just and efficient government to deal with their common affairs, the possession of adequate armaments is essential to ward off unjust attack or to resolve righteously a question in which the forces of evil or reaction may be united in trying to destroy liberty and justice. Though there have been many unrighteous wars, some of the great movements of progress in human history have taken place amidst the din of war. Religious freedom was established as the outcome of the religious wars. Parliamentary government in Great Britain was vindicated in the struggle of Cromwell against Charles I. Both the independence and the unity of the United States were assured at the price of war. Democracy and national freedom prevailed against absolutism in the World War. Doubtless in all these cases had humanity been wiser, more just and loving, the same result could have been achieved without the cost of war. But it was better that the advance should have come at the price of war than that tyranny or anarchy should have tri-

There is another reason why armaments cannot be wholly dispensed with as yet. Inside every civilized state the courts and the police can be appealed to at any time to protect people against wrong. Though there is now an international court, there is no international police, there is no international legislature, and no international government to intervene to protect

THERE are many earnest lovers of the weak or to right the wrong. Unless peace who believe that war can be wrongdoers, whether individuals or states, wrongdoers, whether individuals or states, know that communities have the means of defending themselves or of taking action which will induce respect for their rights, lawlessness, injustice and oppression are likely to increase, and they are the most certain prelude to war. Pending a world federation, therefore, armaments of some kind are the best, indeed the only, assurance that right as between the nations will be respected.

Armaments, too, are a resultant, not a cause. If nations are imperialistic, or afraid, or suspicious of their neighbors, their armaments will be large, and a fatal competition in armaments may set in. If they are honest, or secure, or confident about their neighbors' intentions, their armaments will be small and inexpensive. It is not armaments so much as the attitude of thought behind them that matters. Nor would complete disarmament prevent war, for modern economic and chemical progress has made it possible for an industrial nation to organize and equip itself for war in a very short space of time. The real question is not whether nations will disarm but whether they are ready to submit their disputes with their neighbors to some form of impartial arbitral investigation before they invoke their armed strength, to act justly by other nations in the light of the results and to scrutinize fearlessly and honestly the purpose for which alone they will allow their armaments to be used. Small armaments, if used for selfish or aggressive or willful purposes, may be a menace to world peace. Large armaments, if unselfishly and intelligently used in support of arbitration and justice. may be the preventive of war and a real bulwark of peace. Just as a world government in the ultimate federation of man could not dispense with a police force with which to coerce wrongdoers, so in the period before that consummation the most civilized peoples cannot dispense with armaments as the ultimate sanction behind their own security and international right, as experience during the period from 1914 to 1918 abundantly proved. The most certain way of bringing about a salutary reduction of armaments and of preventing competition in armaments would be for all nations to agree that in no circumstances should war be invoked until arbitration had been tried to the limit as the alternative method of settling every international dispute.

Games. Much credit is undoubtedly due to Maj.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the new president of the Olympic Association, for bringing about the resumption of relationship between the athletic bodies, which must work together if the United States is to uphold its athletic standard in the coming games That football is now a quite satisfactory game will, it would seem, be generally admitted, and are to be made in the rules of 1927. This will give players, coaches and spectators a good chance to become perfectly familiar with the present game. W. W. Roper, Princeton head coach and president of the coaches' association, spoke wisely when he deplored the fact that the individual player was today receiving much of the publicity which should be accorded to the team. It seemed to be the consensus among those most interested in college and amateur athletics that the year 1928 would prove to be one of the very best athletic years yet recorded from the viewpoint both of the competitor and of the spectator.

Where Tenants Are Remembered

MONG the important measures enacted at A the recent session of the British Parlia-ment was the Landlord and Tenant Act, amending the law governing the relation of landlord and tenant so as to provide for compensations to tenants from landlords on the termination of leases. Under the new act tenants will be entitled to compensation both on account of improvements made by the tenant and also on account of "good will," that intangible asset which makes a particular location more desirable than formerly. The act does not directly define good will. It does so indirectly, however, by the process of eliminating values that manifestly were not due to any action by the tenant, but that were brought to pass by increasing population, better transit facilities, and other outside agencies. When the bill reached the House of Commons it was found to be defective in that it would be possible for a tenant to claim compensation for an increase in land values, and after a spirited debate, in which leading members of the House took part, an amendment was added providing that the tribunal passing upon claims for compensation "shall disregard any value which is attributable exclusively to the situation of the

In the course of the discussion over the amendment it appeared that there was a general agreement that increases in land values did not belong to the tenant, while the opinion was also freely expressed to the effect that such increases did not belong to the landlord, since they were not the result of any expenditure or effort on his part. As is usually the case when questions involving property ownership are at ssue, an attempt was made to show that the amendment was socialistic in its tendency, but a large majority of the members declined to be frightened by the socialistic bugaboo. The significance of this legislation, not only for the landed interests of Great Britain, but to landowners in all other countries, is the recognition of a clear distinction between values resulting from improvements made by the landlord or tenant, and the values arising from increased population and other factors making a particular site more desirable. With the marked tendency in almost all countries toward increased urban population, and a relative decline in population of the rural areas, there has been a steady growth in city land values. In many cities a large part of these increased values has been used, through taxation, for public purposes, and the position taken by the British Parliament will doubtless raise in other lands a question as to how far values for which the people are responsible should be regarded as a proper source of public revenue.

Stamps as Good Will Envoys

DECENTLY it was proposed that monuments be dedicated more to peace than to war. Now comes a man who questions the propriety of depicting battle scenes on postage stamps, mentioning especially the White Plains and Burgoyne commemorative issues. Well deserving of an answer is the question that breaks away from tradition into new fields when it asks, "Why not honor great men and events in art, literature, invention and industry?" Surely the upward path of civilization need not be, and is not, limited to military activities!

While the patriotic value of any worth-while and commendable effort in history need not be forgotten, there is merit in turning thought away from war into the more constructive channels of progress. It is not necessary to forget the battle or the noble sacrifices made. But it is important/to direct attention toward an appreciation of the benefits resulting from the ideal fought for. After both victor and vanquished learn the lessons resulting from battle it would seem logical to devote time and attention to enjoying the fruits of the experience. Out of any experience something worth while must have come, or else the event would scarcely be worth recording at all. More time and thought and preparation may profitably be spent upon peace even in times of peace. Because of greater intercommunication postage stamps today as never before are international emissaries, and as such should serve as messengers of good will.

Editorial Notes

What is Henry Ford noted for? Why cars, of course. And yet the exhibition he is now giving at Madison Square Garden, New York City, will include, among other by-products, a charcoal fuel made from sawdust and pressed into briquets. From this product alone it is reported that a business of $14,000,000 a year has been developed. In the ordinary course of events that would be an achievement worthy of more than slight notice.

One thing to ask of the technical men gathering at Hartford, Conn., to consider means of suppressing unnecessary industrial noises, is that they be very quiet about it.

The question now is whether Boston can get its new "world's biggest building" finished before some other city starts a bigger one.

Now that aviation has turned so largely to metal construction, what will be done with the plane trees?

The Diary of a Political Pilgrim

FROM A LONDON CORRESPONDENT IN THE UNITED STATES

PROM A LONDON CORRESPONDED PROM A LONDON CORRESPONDED New York, Chicago and Washington and Vashington New York, Chicago and Washington and then think that they have seen the United States. Having just completed an 8000-mile tour of the United States and completed an 8000-mile tour of the United States and after having visited at one time or another some forty of its states I am going to be bold enough to say that the great industrial quadrilateral, included between Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and Washington, is still immensely the most important and powerful part of the United States and is growing rather than lessening in influence.

Geographically this area is a relatively small section of the whole country. A great part of the population is distributed throughout the South, beyond the Mississippi, along the Pacific slope. For a long time the center of population has been moving westward, so that today it is said to be somewhere in Indiana, not far from the Ohio border. The picture of America which is given to the rest of the world by the "movies" is still largely conrest of the world by the "movies" is still largely con-cerned with cowboys and other relics of the pioneer days.

But in every other respect the great quadrilateral is becoming more and more dominant. The proportion of the population engaged in industry as opposed to agriculture and mining is steadily increasing. Practically all the greater industries of the United States are situated in this area, save where it is beginning to flow over a little into the South. They will continue to remain situated in this area, for nowhere else is there the same juxtaposition of coal and iron, the same facilities for railway transportation, the same easy access by water by the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence and by the Mississippi to the ocean and the markets of the world.

Within its borders are nearly all the great and growing cities in the United States. Within it are nearly all the greater financial institutions which direct the investment of the ever-increasing capital resources of the United States. Within it live most of the leaders of industry, commerce and finance. Within it are the controllers of most of the newspaper and magazine and news syndicates and of most of the amusement corporations of the United States. In all these respects its influence is dominant and unchallenged.

Curiously enough it is in politics that it is relatively weakest, though even there if it exerted its power in a single direction it could be paramount. But under the Constitution of the United States geography is represented as well as population. Nevada with 80,000 people has the same representation in the Senate as New York with 10,000,000. And under the system of checks and balances embodied in the Constitution it is much easier to obstruct than to get things through.

It is at Washington that one can see most clearly the two main problems which the industrial development of this great quadrilateral is gradually bringing up for settle-ment. The first problem is how, if at all, this prodigious machine which is more and more coming to manage the economic life of the whole country, is to be brought into relation with the Constitution and under some kind of

Today the industrial world is in the main monopolistic in character. That is to say, the owners of industry, of the banks and financial houses, of the newspapers and news services, of the amusement corporations and so forth, who are hourly coming to exercise a greater influence over the lives of the people, are responsible to nobody but them-selves, except in so far as the law may limit their freedom in certain directions. The policy which decides what should be published in the press, what should be shown on the stage or the screen, whether industry should be gen-

The American Constitution, which set out to give the people complete control over the political and legal conditions under which they lived, does not enable them to exercise any equivalent control over the economic condi-tions under which they live. In that respect the Constitu-tion of the United States does not differ from other political constitutions in England or elsewhere. Economics has everywhere slipped out of popular control and no one has yet discovered how they can be successfully brought back under control.

Thus at Washington we can see functioning a Constitu-tion which, as Mr. Gladstone said, is one of the wisest political instruments which has ever been devised by man, which has survived almost unchanged the buffets and storms of 150 years of progress and change, which through a leisurely procedure gives to the people ample control over their political activities, if they choose to exercise it, but which has little to do with the tremendous economic machine which has been wholly constructed since the Constitution was framed and which is rapidly coming to govern the conditions under which the people live, not only in the United States, but all over the world.

That is the first big problem which confronts the United States in its internal affairs, how to bring its older political institutions into proper relations with the newer economic institutions which have come into being since the Civil War, how to insure that the so-called money power, the newspaper power, the amusement power, the industrial power which employs the vast majority of the people, and so conditions their lives, shall function in the general interest and not in the selfish or ill-judged interest of those who own them.

The second problem is more subtle. It is how to adjust the ideals and temperament of the newer immigrants who are mostly of Latin or eastern European origin and are concentrated in the great industrial towns with the ideals and temperament of the older Americans, mostly of Anglo-Saxon descent who have made America what it is. Nobody can travel about the country without realizing how rapidly this question is coming to the front or how far-reaching are the issues which underlie it.

The issue was bound to arise eventually as the result of the unrestricted immigration before the Great War. It has been thrust to the front now partly as a result of the Ku-Klux-Klan movement, which is itself a reaction against the attempt of relatively alien elements to dominate in local areas, but whose activities in the last few years have tended to drive the non-Nordic elements together in national politics also, as is evident in the present presidential

The question, however, clearly affects far more than politics. It is to be found in the sphere of religion, of education, of art, and of morals. The strength of the older elements in the population used to lie in their strong religious and moral conviction. Yet most of the older orthodox churches are finding it increasingly difficult to keep their hold on the young because their theologies do not seem to provide a clear solution of the problems, such as evolution, raised by natural science.

It is the same in the other spheres. The authority of the old Puritan tradition, in so far as it has become merely conventional, is yielding before the æsthetic and relatively nonmoral standards of which American citizens of European origin living in the quadrilateral are the principal champions. It is obvious that the United States of the future is not going to be either Puritan of the old-fashioned should be published in the press, what should be shown on the stage or the screen, whether industry should be gengerous and co-operative or grasping and ruthlessly competitive, is wholly a matter for the owners themselves.

Notes From Geneva

GENEVA CUCH a cold snap as we had recently is comparatively rare in Switzerland in December, and when the temperature fell to minus 10.7 centigrade in Geneva one early morning the records were ransacked to find a simar occurrence. For this was an exceedingly low reading. and during the last century was surpassed only in the Decembers of 1829, '51, '70, '71 and '79. In the last of these Decembers the mean temperature for the month was 6.9 degrees below the average. But Dec. 15, 1784, if the record is correct, still holds the palm for extreme cold in this month in Geneva, while in the night of Jan. 25, 1795, the temperature is said to have fallen to minus 21 centigrade. Since 1826, when official records were first kept, only on four occasions has the temperature fallen in the winter in Geneva below minus 20, and during the last thirty-five years the lowest temperature was minus 16.7 on Feb. 1, 1895.

It is only when intense cold is accompanied by the bise," the cold winter from the glaciers of the Bernese Oberland, that the water is frozen in the port of Geneva. And as these two things do not, fortunately, often come together, the occasions on which the port has been covered with ice have been few and far between. It is never thus covered for more than a few days, the last occasion being in January, 1891, when for three days there was

The committee for the relief of the sufferers from the recent inundations in Switzerland and Leichtensten is appealing for voluntary workers to assist in clearing away the debris left by the flood. The appeal is made to men of good will of all nationalities, the only requisite being a strong pair of arms, while women are also needed to do the cooking in the camps which will be provided for the volunteers. Of course, engineers and mechanics will be useful, but anyone who is willing to help is invited. No payment is offered, but food and shelter will be given and free transport as far as possible. The work is to begin early in the spring. The committee appears to have anticipated the plan of the International Union for rendering assistance in times of distress.

4 4 4 The Swiss police have shown commendable activity lately in tracking down the traffickers in illicit drugs. And one cannot help thinking that this has something to do with the criticisms which were passed on a certain Swiss firm by the Advisory Committee on Opium at its last session, when the fact was disclosed that a large and illicit consignment of Swiss drugs had been traced to Japan. At all events postal packages which might conceal drugs were carefully overhauled, with the result that a number of smugglers were discovered who, by posting their drugs from different parts of Switzerland in ordinary envelopes, had up to then escaped detection. And now another trafficker has been run down in the person of the proprietor of a firm, who, according to police reports, has been exporting enormous quantities of drugs to Turkey and the East, far in excess of the quota allowed.

There has been considerable snow here, and nothing seems to abate the enthusiasm of the young people for winter sports in the streets to the light of the street lamps. At this moment there are probably thousands of young people all over France, Germany and England, where the snow is also lying, who are indulging in the same sport under the street lamps. In many of the mountain hotels of Switzerland, half the languages of Europe may be heard at this time of year. In fact, there are no sports so international as these winter rathers. national as these winter games.

The coming of the Russian delegation for the meeting of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission caused a nine days' wonder in Geneva. It did not cause quite such a sensation, however, as when ex-Prince Ossinsky and Comrade Kinchuk came for the Economic Conference and were barricaded in the Hotel d'Angleterre for their better protection, a precaution to which they much objected. This time the delegation went to the Hotel de la Paix, where their quarters were more luxurious, and the name of the hotel, so the Russians said, was more suitable for their mission. Once more Geneva discovered that a Bolshevist delegate looks very much like the rest of the world. Indeed, Litvinoff is the very picture of a prosperous bourgeois, such as may be seen at any time in the streets of Geneva, while Lunacharsky has the professorial stamp.

Litvinoff speaks English quite well, for he is married to an English wife, the daughter of a former curator of the British Museum, while Lunacharsky also addressed the security committee in English, although they both speak French and German. Another outstanding figure at Geneva in the early days of December was Lord Cushendun, better known as Ronald MacNeill, whose commanding height enabled him to tower over the other delegates when he rose to address them.

Exempting Dogs From Vivisection

TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR:

Some few weeks ago there appeared in the Montron letter from a reader asking that all interested write their congressman pertaining to a bill to be proposed at the next session of Congress for the exemption of dogs from vivisection. Might I add a line or two for the infornation of those who would like to speak for those that cannot speak for themselves, the-dogs?

bill is proposed by the International Conference for the Investigation of Vivisection. There are at present something like ninety-three societies working for the passage of this bill. A few of them are: The New England Society, the American Anti-Vivisection Society of Philadelphia, the Maryland Society, the Illinois Society of Chicago, the Washington Society and the California Society. Any one of these societies will send upon request a petition to be signed by as many as possible and returned to the society, who in turn will see that the same is placed through the proper channels, to be finally brought to the attention of Congress.

All who have any feeling for man's friend, the dog

(and who is there who has not?), and who know even a little of the horrors of vivisection, will bend every effort for the passage of this bill, for if this goes through for the elimination of dogs from the hand of the vivisector it must eventually mean the freedom for all animals who are subjected to this terrible torture.

When an authority like Professor Bigelow says, "There will come a time when the world will look back to modto burning at the stake in the name of religion." can be assured no good is obtained by vivisection, and only suffering for the dumb, helpless things. Professor of surgery in Harvard University.

Let us hope that all who read this may make an effort to have their signatures appear in behalf of our friend, the dog.

A Masonic Tribute

TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR:

I take pleasure in advising you that, at the session of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Alabama which ended on the evening of Dec. 7, I took occasion to call attention to your paper and to the excellency with which it is edited. I also called attention to the series of articles on Freemasonry which has recently been appearing therein. I regard your paper as one of the very best in the country, and I assure you you have my best wishes for contition of your success.
